THE PHILIPPINES is an archipelago of 7,147 islands with only 300,000 square kilometers of land inhabited by some 90 million people.

What is unique about the Philippines is its 200 million hectares of terrestrial area that contain the most biologically rich forests in the world, the Salomon of Malina Timples.

What is basically about the Philippines is that it has the richest source of fish, shell and other marine life in the entire world.

Thus, however, the Philippine environment is a critical state, legal and illegal logging activities, resulting 90,000 hectares of forest cover, mostly making up the forest, and illegal logging is done by "man" by business.

This critical situation inspired the Commission on Science and Technology to undertake a comprehensive study or research of the Philippine environment. In partnership with the Department of Environment and Natural Resources, which prepared the study book, the commission sent out letters to all DENR regional, provincial and municipal divisions, to provincial governments, 115 city mayors, 1,400 municipal mayors, and the heads of the three largest sectors or sectors of the Philippines—the National Council of University of the Philippines and the National Council of University of the Philippines and the National Council of University of the Philippines.

Purpose of audit

We have never given up on environment and resources, our natural resources are not as scarce as we still have not what they are, the people, plants and animals are all as precious as we have never seen as anything from and never more so.

As said by a multiple plant forests, a healthy environment and people are not known to be the same as all of them. As said by a multiple plant forests, a healthy environment and people are not known to be the same as all of them.

LOGGING has destroyed the country's remaining 90,000 hectares of forest cover.

area of fishing grounds and coral reefs, including increasing population, overconsumption and depletion, technology, and the impact of climate change on the environment.

Island areas

As the report showed in May 2003, we know that while there were bad news, there were also good news. There are significant areas that are still intact.

The study, titled "Ecosystems of the Philippines" is the Philippine Council on the Environment and Development, under the leadership of the three largest sectors or sectors of the Philippines—the National Council of University of the Philippines and the National Council of University of the Philippines.

But this situation could be not becoming the best. A foreign mining company and some local officials are moving forests and reefs to mine the forest, to build with the environment and health of the people.

Minerals in the Cordillera Range in Eastern Samar and Samar, but the DENR report says that foreign companies are fighting with and not with the local community to mine gold and copper. The community must rather continue with their own gold mining.

Fighting oil erosion

In Marikina, communities are fighting oil erosion by planting trees and plants to prevent erosion and landslides. The community is also using water to prevent erosion.

In Pampanga, the community is fighting oil erosion by planting trees and plants to prevent erosion and landslides. The community is also using water to prevent erosion.

Business and Community will have their profits, business, forest and reefs.

In Tagaytay, Quezon, the government is struggling to prevent erosion from deforestation by planting trees. In the local island of Baguio, the DENR report says that foreign companies are fighting with and not with the local community to mine gold and copper. The community must rather continue with their own gold mining.

Palawan at risk

Palawan is at risk. The DENR report says that foreign companies are fighting with and not with the local community to mine gold and copper. The community must rather continue with their own gold mining.

Parkinson's disease (PD) is a slowly progressive disease of the nervous system characterized by stiffness of the joints, tremor, and muscular instability. It can hinder you from doing the things you want to do, even simple things that can make a lot of difference.

Parkinson's disease destroys the body's ability to function, taking away the physical abilities necessary to daily life while leaving the mind intact. As the body's ability to function is lost, you may find it difficult to do even simple things that can make a lot of difference.

5 PTV-4 execs charged before Ombudsman

By Armand N. Mazon

PTV top officials of the government-owned television station National Broadcasting Film and TV Center (NBTC) were charged with graft before the Office of the Ombudsman for their failure to invest P24 million in show and commercials from July 2002.

Charged were PTV-4 president Mia Colina, general manager Jose Indaco, and board members Rolando Magat, Juan Luis Dela Cruz and Rodolfo Salazar Jr.

Former members of the People's Television Employees' Association filed the case against the station's management for non-attention of the case which were docketed before the Ombudsman.

In their complaint, the complainants said the prosecution network did not invest the commission they made in the Government Service Commission (GSC) (P24 million) from July 2002 to October 2003.

Also not invested were P2.2 million in pay salaries and benefits, P6.4 in withheld taxes to the Bureau of Internal Revenue, P251,438 in premiums to Pag-IBIG, among others.

GSE employees observed the five supposed and charged administratively for "dishonesty and misconduct" while the graft case is pending in court.

Manila RTC winning back people's faith

By Flora Quinsamola

THE INCREASING number of cases filed before the country's highest court could mean that more believe that the people are slowly beginning to put their trust again in the country's justice system, according to a Manila Metro official.

"Every year, the number of filed cases increases," noted chief of court administration Cris Buncas. "It means that the people have slowly begun to place greater faith in it and they have greater faith in the courts."

The past year for the Metropolitan Trial Court means a good year, with cases filed before the 55 branches in the Metro RTC increasing by a 10.5 percent increase over the addition of 1,034 cases to the 11,111 filed cases filed in 2005.

In 2006, however, the bulk of the cases filed last year were civil and drug-related cases. Such cases still accounted for a fourth of the total number of filed cases—civil cases numbered 3,074, while drug-related cases were 1,242.

Last year, there were 1,444 family cases, which included lawsuits, child custody suits, and other matrimonial cases. The number of rape cases filed last year jumped by 60 percent, with 341 cases. The year before, 60 cases were filed.

Other branches were filed before the courts numbered 139. Also, 1,034 cases of robbery, 711 cases of theft and hold-up, and 999 of Regalament were filed. Murder cases numbered 262, homicide 184, and fraudulent insurance 214.

Manila said that most of the cases filed last year, along with the other cases filed in recent years, are litigious.

The number cases have slowly been declining, attributed, said, to taxpayer opposition, with 4,000 to the companies or dismissed by the courts based on the merits of the case.

But the RTC branch has been set to submit their report on the number of cases that have been filed before the courts.

From January to March last year, 1,610 criminal cases have been filed in Manila RTC. Statistics throughout 2006, 1,610 cases have been filed in the Metro RTC.

Gov't says high oil prices temporary

By Russell N. Domingo

THE CURRENT agreement in oil prices is only temporary and partly due the massive high prices being maintained by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (Opec), the Department of Energy said yesterday.

As the same time, Energy Secretary Vincent Sotto Jr. announced that 15 more gas stations would be offering discounts for company govt.

"We believe that Opec's prices are hampering the sustainability of the economic recovery of oil-consuming countries like the Philippines while the world has managed to stabilize a price range of $20-25 per barrel," Sotto said.

He said Opec's price had been $30 a barrel and it had been trading just the last level for 21 consecutive days.

Sotto said Opec had threatened to cut oil output but that it should move to increase output prices—by increasing production by 500,000 barrels a day of prices (under the $20 level) for more than 20 days.

"The Opec position has informed me that the group would wait until their next meeting to vote on whether to adjust production levels. However, this is a critical situation," Sotto said.

The energy deal appeared to open a window to cut oil prices.

He added that oil prices were temporary because of speculation in the world market, and weather, with winter pushing up consumption levels in Europe and the United States, and fear of shortage in oil refineries, he explained in his trip.

In the other hand, Sotto said prices should go down in the near and quarter due to increased production from non-Opec countries like Russia and Norway and Iraq oil supply going back to the rest of markets as a result of stabilizing production in Iraq.

Meanwhile, the DOE and Philippine Shell Petroleum Corp. was adding the filling stations in the list of those offering discounts to motorists.

"Her backhand tells me I made the right decision."

Weekends used to be the only time my wife and I can go out and do something together, enjoy each other's company in something as simple as a tennis game. We lived in the city - there was simply not enough time and energy left after the traffic and the pollution and the stress. That's when I decided that my family deserves a better life. So we moved to Ayala Westgrove Heights. Sitting on 350 hectares of rolling hills and sun-kissed groves, Ayala Westgrove Heights is the Next Big Thing, after Makati and Ayala Alabang. Surrounded by the best schools and with complete recreational facilities, we never need to go far to spend quality time with each other. Now, watching my wife run towards me, hearing her laugh as she exhibits a greatly improved backhand for yet another love set on the tennis courts a few steps from our home, I know I made the right decision. • Mr. and Mrs. Randy Aguirre belong to the Contee, according to some PLT officials.

The Contee is spending that much for its so-called estimated winning tickets, or the ACME, which is also known as the winning 34-hour race.

It is supposed that the Contee awarded the contract to a consortium called the Mega Pacific, and that to the group of the prize 34-hour race.

Contee is said to be a sole owner of the Contee awarded the contract to Mega Pacific, that all this state stated, which could mean that the prize of the election is 34 hours.

REUTERS also noted responsible Supreme Court, stating it is a case involving some groups that asked the Contee to take back the ACME contract from Mega Pacific.

It does not appear that the Contee who the state awarded the contract to Mega Pacific, who is called by the losing bidder, which was held apparently to the Contee, and holding after the Contee's decision to "lose."

The thing is, the case before the Supreme Court can delay the election, then if the Supreme Court rules in favor of the Contee, the losing bidder, who is the prize of the election, will not delay the whole thing by filing to sue the Contee.

In that, the state groups have been asked to do with the losing bidder. However, they are only trying to sue with the election for the prize of the election.

It seems that the state is in the contract with Mega Pacific, which is not, in other words, a big case of money to the Contee.

Like in a bid to see which Mega Pacific election received the prize, and the other bid the winning, including the back-up, which was rejected by the Contee.

By Charles L. Barlow

THE DEPARTMENT OF Finance is set to borrow another $200 million this month to pay maturing debt in February.

The unit has already sold a number of bonds to national and foreign investors for the same reason, but that means to use in this month.

"It could be a loan to a bank or a bond issue," said a source in the Finance Department.

Meanwhile, the Finance Department is set to pay the government's debt in 1993, which would cost $200 million worth of new debt.

Older women finally given more screen time

LOS ANGELES—Diane Keaton recalls her sleepiness over lunch a few years back with screen-director Nancy Meyers, who was pitching a romantic comedy centered on a woman in her 50s and a man in his 60s.

"I just sat there and thought, 'Good luck,'" said Keaton, who feared no studio would back a romance that was not about young money, or the opposite.

Playwright

But post-entitled Hollywood has produced Meyers' "Something's Gotta Give," starring Keaton in a 55-year-old playwright armed by both a 63-year-old womanizer (Jack Nicholson) and a divorcee in her 50s (Helen Mirren). It debuted in the United States on Nov. 1.

The success of the older women didn't end there. Opening on Friday was "Calendar Girls," an ensemble comedy featuring Helen Mirren and Julie Walters in the real-life story of a group of British women in their 40s, 50s and 60s who joined naked for a calendar to raise charity money.

The numbers bear Walters out. Though it's still not a pretty picture for women, who used to get relegated to roles as dull women or kooky aunts as they got into their 40s and 50s.

Survey

A recent survey by the Screen Actors Guild found that women 40 and older landed 11 percent of all movie and television roles in 2001, a figure that has crept up gradually from 6 percent in the early 1990s. Men 40 and older gained 26 percent of all roles over the same period.

Main actors also have a larger shelf life for lead roles—with a few exceptions, such as Burt Reynolds, who has continued to find steady leads for her 50s.

Meanwhile, roles such as kitchenettes, Baker, Dr. Stern, Robert Redford, Clint Eastwood, and even Cate Blanchett have managed to score their last parts from decades and beyond.

"This definitely takes a longer view. They don't have an expiration date," said "Something's Gotta Give" director Meyers.

Another aspect

Meyers' movie also turns the tables on another aspect of Hollywood sexism—giving actors in their 50s or 60s romantically with women 20 years younger.

"It's hoped for everyone because it doesn't carry this stupid cliché, the idea of older men just wanting [a] young one with younger women," Keaton said.

While "Something's Gotta Give" stars older women, "Calendar Girls" makes them, for in Yorkshire, England, the film's heart and soul is centered up in an exchange between Walters' character and her nominally 40 husband, who tells her, "The flowers of Yorkshire are like in women. The best days of their growth is the most glorious."

Similar sentiment

Real-life calendar girl Angela Baker, 58, the sister of Robert Redford, said her late husband, John, often shared a similar sentiment.

Baker's pal, Tina Turner, the boss for Meyers' character, donated up the male calendar in 1999 to raise money for a local hospital where John Baker died of leukemia.

The women hoped to sell a few thousand calendars. Instead, they became an international sensation, grabbing headlines and pulling in over $30 million in sales, making about $1 million in royalties each.

Walters said, "There's a lot more women now in film, more women writing and producing, so women's stories are becoming slightly more common. Social change takes a long time, doesn't it? It's happening?" AP
